

CHRISTMAS
—ALREADY AT—JOE'S

...Xmas For Everybody...

As usual we have everything to make the children happy, please the parents, and settle the question as to
"What Shall I Get For My Boys and Girls?"

No one is so early in the field, no one has more choice selections, and no one can give so much real value for the money.
DON'T ASK ANYTHING ABOUT PRICES.
I'M ASHAMED TO QUOTE THEM HERE.

JOE.

YOU WILL DO THE REST.

A Look Only Is What I Ask.

It is Now Biggerstaff and Oldham. Mr. A. C. Buchanan, yesterday afternoon, sold his interest in the furniture business of Buchanan and Biggerstaff to Mr. Will Oldham, of White Hall. This change directs to the firm the patronage of a large circle of friends and relatives of Mr. Oldham, who is one of the best liked men in Madison county. Bob and Willie, young, ambitious, industrious and popular.

—It's a hard matter to keep a stock of vehicles on hand all the time; but if you will leave your order with me you will get what you want.

JOHN DONSCHACH.

Judge Chenault's History of Madison.

But for the fact that the dates, names, places, and other valuable data were all mixed up, the Register's page of history from the pen of Judge Wm. Chenault would have been an invaluable contribution to the historical literature of Madison. No man living or dead knows as much of her history as does the learned Judge, and it is a pity his labors were lost in what was otherwise a laudable endeavor to preserve these valuable statistics in convenient form.

—A beautiful and lasting Christmas present, combining culture, refinement and elegance, is a guitar, Banjo or mandolin and a thorough course of instruction at Prof. Minier's Parlor, Conservatory of Music, 317 West Main street.

A Sad Death.

The death of Willie Goodloe Smith, in Cincinnati, was peculiarly sad. She had been under treatment for her eye sight, when she was attacked with pneumonia and died. Her death was an awful blow to family and friends alike, and her burial was one of the saddest ever witnessed here. She was a daughter of the late Dr. C. C. Smith, whose death, less than two years ago, created widespread sorrow, for he was one of Nature's Noblemen.

—Elsewhere appears a beautiful tribute to the deceased young lady.

—The best conservatory methods of instruction taught, music and instruments from any publisher or manufacturer in the world, supplied at Prof. Minier's studio, the most elegant music rooms in the city. 317 West Main St.

To Knock Out Buckeye.

The correspondent for the Standard Interior-Journal from Lancaster of Tuesday says: "It is proposed to have the Legislature put Buckeye precinct in the Jassamine county, which will make Garrard surely Democratic." All right, we will accept the annexation, for some of the best citizens Jassamine has, are from Garrard, and there is no reason why the precinct of Buckeye cannot be made the same way. But as soon as it is done our Democratic missionaries will be set to work among them and the Journal will now appoint J. W. Mitchell and R. M. Hunter to do the work—Jassamine Journal.

—The friends of Mrs. J. F. Stone are notified that she is engaged in trimming for Mrs. Lucy Mann, on Main street, opposite Blanton's coal office. Ladies need no assurance that these fashionable milliners have no superiors in Richmond, and their prices and goods are without a peer.

Miss Pattie's Recital.

The old quarters of the Revenue office, over Joe's, have not resounded with such delightful music since the dances given by the famous old Madison Club with Saxton's orchestra, as they did on Friday night last, when Miss Pattie's music class gave a recital there. A handsome audience assembled in the spacious parlors, and the recital was, to such an occasion, and was regarded with the finest musical selections heard this season. Miss Pattie is an acknowledged artist and the impress of her training is evident in the high grade of work of her pupils. On this occasion as upon all her previous recitals Miss Pattie received the unstinted praise of her critical auditors. At the evening for the second time this season and scored a decided hit. The proceeds, amounting to $170, were for the benefit of Madison Institute.

—Round-trip tickets will be sold by all agents of the Southern Railway at rate of fare and one-third for the round-trip on December 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, and also on December 30th and 31st, 1907 and January 1st 1908, limited to return until January 4th, 1908.

In addition to this, Holiday Rates will be granted to Students of Colleges and Schools, upon presentation of certificates signed by the Principals of the Colleges and Schools, at the same rate for tickets sold December 19th to 25th, 1907 inclusive, good to return until January 4th, 1908.

Richmond Merchants Encouraged.

Professor Richard W. Miller, of the Law Department of Central University, Richmond, Ky., was at the Burnet yesterday. He is in search of advertisements for a huge Christmas tree to be prepared in his city—Enquirer Dec-18.

The attention of the people has been referred to in these columns, to the necessity of our merchants being patronized by our home people, and other towns in Kentucky are awakening to the justice of such action. But the worst set back to such an idea we notice is given by our Register friend who not only makes a living off of the people of his town but gets most all of his revenue from the merchants of his city by advertising their wares for sale in his paper. And yet in defiance of all the rules of justice we see his name in the Enquirer of Dec. 18, as being in Cincinnati buying adornments for a Christmas tree in Richmond when our merchants' counters and shelves are loaded with such adornments and would be glad to sell them as cheap as he can get them in Cincinnati.

Belle Boyd, The Woman Spy—A Fine Lecture.

The Famous Woman Spy of the Confederacy, Belle Boyd, lectured at Court House Thursday night before a tolerably large sized audience, owing to the bad weather. At 8 o'clock a detachment of uniformed cadets with muskets, in command of Lieut. Vestal, U. S. A., marched into the building with flying flags and beating drums. After numerous maneuvers the guns were stacked, the colors draped and the boys stood "attention." Directly on the arm of Major General J. M. Poyntz, of this city, the lady speaker walked down the left aisle and was received with applause. She mounted the platform and surveyed the scene with evident pleasure. The glistening bayonets and newly uniformed cadets showed off to advantage, and made a good background for the superb specimen of womanhood. Without a lengthy introduction but a pretty one, by Poyntz presented the "Woman Spy," whose first utterance thrilled her hearers for she spoke with marvelous power and directness, though a trifle too rapidly. For an hour she held her audience in pleased astonishment at her narratives of the war and her thrilling personal experiences. Born of soldierly ancestors, clear back to the days of Cromwell, and with her grandfather a soldier of the American Revolution, she declared it was a prouder heritage to have been the daughter of a brave Confederate who was a personal friend of Lee and Jackson, than to be a Colonial Dame or a Daughter of the Revolution! She spoke with an earnestness which was captivating and her stories of camp life, the march and the battle were thrilling in the extreme. Whilst paying unstinted homage to the heroes of the Lost Cause she did not underrate the bravery of the Boys in Blue. As was well said by an orator at the unveiling of the Confederate monument at Chicago a few years ago, "to detract from the bravery of the victors is to detract from the valor of the vanquished."

The audience must have obtained a higher conception of the courage and the daring required of a woman who loves her country better than her life, and, too, they learned that the boys who went forth to battle with the dew of a woman's kiss upon their brows were no braver than those gentle creatures who stayed at home and toiled and waited and watched—oftentimes for the loved ones who never returned. Her description of the battle of Gettysburg was superb. Her stories of hospital life were touching in the extreme. A thousand letters home she wrote for sick and dying men, of both armies, the Blue and the Gray.

All honor to Belle Boyd, my dear days upon the earth be many, and may the memory of her daring deeds never fade from the minds of men.

When a man owns a blooded horse he is always careful of its health. He looks after its diet and is particular that the feeding shall be regular and right. While he is doing this it is likely as not that he is himself suffering from some disease or disorder. When the trouble gets so bad that he cannot work, he will begin to give himself the care he gave the horse at the start. Good pure, rich red blood is the best insurance against disease of any kind. Almost all diseases come from impure or impoverished blood. Keep the blood pure and strong and disease can find no foothold. That is the principle upon which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery works. It cleanses, purifies and enriches the blood, puts and keeps the whole body in perfect order; makes appetite good, digestion strong, assimilation perfect. It brings ruddy, virile flesh. It builds up solid, wholesome vitality (not fat) when, from any cause, reduced below the healthy standard.
